BORNE TO THE TOMB.

MAJOR BALDWIN BURIED WITH MILITARY HONORS.

Spontaneous Expression of Regard—Largest Outpouring the City has ever seen—Delegations from Surrounding Cities—Immense Procession.

If the spontaneous outpouring of a city's population on a funeral occasion is any indication of the esteem in which the deceased was held by the community, and if such expression has any power to assuage the grief of sorely stricken hearts, then on Sunday there must have been a rift in the cloud of sorrow which envelopes the hearts in the stricken home of Major Baldwin, for never in its history has our city seen such a concourse of people on a funeral occasion. The nearest approach to it was when Father Dixon, the founder of our city, was borne to the tomb, in 1876.

As stated Saturday, the casket containing the body of Major Baldwin arrived from the east a little after five o'clock under escorte of Judge Farrand Judge Crabtree, C. B. Morrison, S. H. Bethea, Wm. Barge, E. H. Brewster, E. C. Parsons and U. Stroup.

Early Sunday morning the entrance hall of the Court House had been prepared by a committee. The walls were draped with bunting and the facade of the courthouse festooned with flags mingled with crape. In the center of the hall, guarded by a detail from the G. A. R., rested the casket, within which reposed the mortal remains of Major Baldwin, dressed in full uniform.

From 9 o'clock till nearly noon streams of people flocked from all directions, entering the park by every avenue of approach. Slowly this stream of humanity filed between the guards at the north door of the court house, and dividing, passed on either side of the bier, and out through the north entrance. During the hours in which the body of Major Baldwin thus lay in state, thousands must have passed in silent procession, looking for a moment on the once manly form and features known to so many. The face was sadly thinned by disease and the once fair complexion was bronzed by exposure, while over it the pallor of death seemed to cast a leaden hue. The mild blue eyes were closed in sleep and the expression of the countenance was that of peaceful rest.

Long before 3 o'clock, the hour announced for the funeral at St. Luke's church, corner of Third street and Peoria avenue, the cross streets in each direction—north, south, east, and west—were crowded from walk to walk with vehicles for nearly two blocks, while the sidewalks for nearly the same distance were thickly lined with pedestrians. But a fraction of these could of course find entrance to the church, its seating capacity having been nearly exhausted by the mourners and the various military and auxiliary societies. On the arrival of the hearse, the mourners were escorted to seats in front of the chancel by the six captains of the regiment sent from Springfield to attend the funeral. Upon the opening of the doors, such as had clustered around the portals filed in and found standing room in the aisles and vestibules of the building.

The regular Episcopal funeral service was impressively read by the rector, Rev. John C. Sage, in a clear tone distinctly heard throughout the large audience room. Three hymns were sung by the vested choir: "Paradise, O, Paradise," "I Heard the Voice of Jesus say," and "Hark, Hark, My Soul." The solo in the second selection was beautifully carried by Miss Emilie Murray.

Upon the conclusion of the service, the aisles and a passage to the hearse were cleared by the ushers, E. C. Parsons and Charles E. Chandler, and a procession was formed in the following order:

Grand Army of the Republic, led by uniformed and armed escort, and drum corps, L. Backus and John E. Grove.

Woman's Relief Corps bearing standards.

College Cadets from Northern Illinois Normal School.

Ex-Members of Co. G. carrying draped flag.

Honorary Escort—Captains A. T. Tourtillott of Co. K, LaMoille; W. F. Lawrie of Co. E. Sterling; T. L. McGirr, Co. C, Galesburg; Philip McGrath, Co. G Dixon; C. B. Kling, Co. L, Freeport; and H. G. Geiger of Company M of Galena.

Hearse with bearers, ex-members of Company G, as follows: Col. Fred Hanlon, A. P. Armington, Judd T. Potter, Wm. W. Gilbert, Dudley Woodworth and Dr. E. S. Murphy.

Horse and accoutrements of the Major, led by the groom, Ora Hall, and accompanied by Lieutenant J. H. Showalter, Battalion Adjutant, La Moille.

Carriages with family and friends of the deceased.

Following these was a long line of vehicles numbering hundreds, while the sidewalks from the church to Oakwood cemetery were crowded with thousands of pedestrians.

Arriving at the grave a triple hollow square was formed; the outer line of G. A. R. members, center W. R. C. ladies, inner line of ex-members of Co. G. Within this square was borne the casket, followed by the mourners and Rev. Sage, who read the committal service of the church.

The grave presented none of the harsh, bare, appearance usually associated with a funeral service. Every particle of the excavated soil had been removed from sight and the walls of the opening were lined with the American colors, banked and festooned with flowers and vines. This delicate tribute was the graceful work of the young ladies of St. Agnes' Guild of the Episcopal church. Here, into the flower-decked bosom of Mother Earth, in the south-eastern portion of our beautiful Oakwood cemetery, was lowered the casket containing the mortal remains of Major Baldwin, its lid covered with many rich floral tributes from friends, among which looked out the folds of an elegant silk flag, the gift of Col. Foster.

At the conclusion of the service of committal, the armed guard of the Grand Army Veterans, under J. T. Reed, fired three volleys of musketry over the grave, after which the bugler, W. H. Missman, sounded "taps," when the ex-members of Company G filed past the grave, each dropping into it a small bouquet of roses. Then the immense crowd of—some say—ten thousand people began to disperse.

Among the many beautiful floral tributes received before the funeral was an elegant pillow with the legend "Our Major," sent from the regiment at Springfield, and a floral flag from Company G, a national sheild from the ex-members of Company G in Dixon.

The general management of not only the funeral, but of the return of the body from Philadelphia, devolved on Mr. C. H. Hughes, whose personal friendship as exhibited in these services, have been invaluable to the family of the deceased, and to whom credit is largely due for the perfection with which all the details of the sad event were carried out. Through his brother in Philadelphia the services of David H. Schuyler were secured as undertaker in that city, and Mr. Camp, the undertaker here, says that so perfectly was the work performed that no touch needed to be added on the arrival of the casket. All the arrangements for the funeral here were perfectly and noislessly carried out without undue display.

To the thoughtful kindness of Wm. Barry, sexton of Oakwood, is due one pleasant memory to bereaved hearts. When the shades of evening began to hover over the declining day the wife and parents of the deceased returned for a last lingering look at the grave of their loved one, they found there no trace of recent burial. Every pebble and grain of sand had been swept from the grass and the precious mound most carefully recovered with the emerald sod and strewn with flowers. And for the comfort of those who mourn in a home left desolate we may say that this evidence of delicate attention is but an individual expression of a very wide-spread sympathy. Life to Major Baldwin meant very much. Wedded to an estimable young wife but a single year since, father of a child whom he had never yet clasped in his arms, the main stay and support of an aged father and mother, and with a busines that needed his attention to insure its continuance, it was no common sacrifice he offered on the altar of his country. But with a clear comprehension of the possibilities, he faltered not, but bravely marched with his regiment in the face of death, and Death has claimed him for his own. Yet no—

There is no death! the stars go down
To rise upon some other shore.
And bright in heaven's jewelled crown
They shine for evermore.

And all things that for growth or joy
Are worthy of our love or care,
Whose loss has left us desolate,
Are safely garnered there.

Although with bowed and breaking heart,
With sable garb and silent tread,
We bear their senseless dust to rest,
And say that they are "dead,"—

They are not dead! they have but passed
Beyond the mists that blind us here,
Into the new and larger life
Of that serener sphere.

They have but dropped their robe of clay
To put their shining raiment on;
They have not wandered far away,—
They are not "lost," nor "gone."

Though disenthralled and glorified,
They still are here and love us yet;
The dear ones they have left behind
They never can forget.

And ever near us, though unseen,
The dear, immortal spirits tread—
For all the boundless universe
Is Life:—there are no dead!

MONKS MUST MOVE ON

Must Emigrate from the Philippines, According to the Archbishop's View.

SPANISH CONTROL A DEAD ISSUE.

Religious Orders Declared Responsible for the Whole Disturbance in the Archipelago—Annexation in the Lead with the People—Gallant Capt. Capron Follows His Son to the "Undiscovered Country"—Sickness Among the Soldiers on the Increase.

Manila, Sept. 19.—In an interview here with him by the correspondent of the Associated Press Archbishop Dozal, of the Philippine islands, said: "I earnestly hope the islands will not remain Spanish, because the rebels are now so strong that such a course would inevitably cause appalling bloodshed. The reconquest of the natives is impossible until after years of the most cruel warfare." He also expressed the hope that the islands would not become absolutely independent, because it was certain that dissensions would occur which would result in incessant strife and a lapse into barbarism and the natural indolence of the tropical race. The only hope, the archbishop declared, was that a strong western power would intervene now. Delay was dangerous, because the people are intoxicated, vainglorious and restless.

Archbishop Blames the Monks.

He said it was undeniable that the religious orders must go, because the whole people had determined to abolish them now that they were able to render their retention impossible. He lay the chief blame upon the Dominicans, Augustins and Franciscan Recoletans—the richest orders—and next upon the Benedictines and Capuchins, which are of less importance. The Jesuits, Archbishop Dozal says, are comparatively blameless. He added that the rival orders quarrel among themselves, intrigue, act unworthily and slander their opponents, thus increasing their general disfavor. The provinciales, who are approximately equivalent to archdeacons, are mainly responsible. They are utterly beyond the control of the archbishop, who denies possessing much power.

Annexationists in the Majority.

The total number of Spanish priests in the Philippines before the war was about 1,000, but lately every departing steamer has taken fifty or 100 of them away, and now barely 500 remain. A native priest privately stated to the correspondent that the reason the archbishop hopes for the expulsion of the friarly orders is that they have grown too powerful for him, and that he wishes to strengthen himself. Several responsible Spaniards assured the correspondent that they would refuse to remain here if Spain was reinstated in the control of the islands. Many of the Spanish soldiers refuse to serve again, and Spanish officers are utterly disgusted with the rottenness of Spain's government and prefer to become American subjects. The annexationists have a majority of seventy-one in the national assembly, but the discussion of the subject has not been finished.

CAPTAIN CAPRON ANOTHER VICTIM.

Gallant Artillery Officer, Untouched by Bullets, Succumbs to Typhoid.

Washington, Sept. 19.—Captain Allyn Capron, First artillery, died at his home near Fort Myer, Va., yesterday. Captain Allyn K. Capron, son of the deceased, was an officer in the "Rough Riders" and was killed in the first fight before Santiago, La Quasina. The father was in the next fight with his battery. He came home with the seeds of typhoid in his system. He will probably be buried in Arlington National cemetery.

Captain Capron was one of the best-known officers in the regular army. He had devoted himself particularly to the artillery branch of the service, having ben an honor graduate of the artillery shcool in 1873, and was regarded as an authority on artillery tactics. When General Shafter's corps went to Santiago Captain Capron accompanied it and his battery did notably fine work in the battle of Santiago. The death of his son preyed on his father's mind, but he never swerved for an instant from his duty during the terrible days that followed. Captain Capron was born in Florida and entered the military academy as a cadet in 1863.

OTHER SIDE OF THE QUESTION.

Testimony That Contradicts the Complaints Against Alger's Management.

Chickamuaga Park, Ga., Sept. 19.—In an interview with the Associated Press Major R. Emmitt Giffen, surgeon in charge of Sternberg hospital at this place, said: "In my opinion Chickamauga Park is one of the healthiest locations in the entire country that possibly could have been chosen for a great military encampment. I have been here for some time now and I have come to the conclusion that no more desirable place could have been found anywhere. * * * The sickness at Chicgamauga Park has been caused by the improper and negligent manner in which the sanitary regulations recommended by the army surgeons have been enforced."

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 19.—"We believe that the soldiers encamped at Camp Cuba Libre are cared for as well as it is possible for a large body of men encamped anywhere in the United States." This is the conclusion in a report filed Saturday with Governor Shaw by Col. H. Egbert, of Davenport, and Dr. F. W. Parsons, of Rienbeck, special commissioners appointed to investigate the matter.

JOY TURNED INTO MOURNING.

Waiting Family Learns That He They Waited for Is Dead.

Sheboygan, Wis., Sept. 19.—A very affecting scene took place on the arrival of the Sheboygan contingent of the Second Wisconsin regiment of volunteers yesterday. The father, mother and sister of William J. Triers, who was a member of the regiment, but died in Porto Rico, met the train to greet the soldier boy. Not seeing her boy leave the train, Mrs. Triers asked one of the soldiers if he knew young Triers. The mother was informed that the young man died two weeks ago and was buried at Ponce on Sept. 4. The Triers' home, which had been decorated in the honor of the home-coming of the soldier, was turned into a house of mourning.

SICKNESS IN CAMP INCREASES.

News to the Effect Comes from Cuba, Porto Rico and Home Points.

Washington, Sept. 19.—In dispatches to the war department last night Major General Brooke reports four deaths among the American troops at Ponce, Porto Rico, three yesterday and one Friday, among them being D. C. Brace, company A, Third Wisconsin, typhoid fever. A Camp Meade, dispatch says: "The general hospitals are again filling up with typhoid and malarial fever patients. The Thirty-fifth Michigan has sixty cases." The news from Santiago is the worst, owing to the big jump in the number of cases and deaths. The number sick reported yesterday was 1,222. The deaths for the 15th and 16th numbered seven.

Nearly one-sixth of General Lawton's force is now on the sick list, and his whole force is composed of regulars and "immunes."

A Kansas City dispatch reports the death of E. M. Sprigg, private, company G, Third Missouri, but whose home was at Medaryville, Ind. Nicholas Blitsch, of Chicago, First Illinois infantry, died at Grace hospital, New Haven, Conn., yesterday of typhoid fever.

A number of sick soldiers were sent to New York hospitals yesterday from Camp Wikoff, among them: Albert Chesney, company H, and Charles Holland, company C, Thirty-third Michigan, and Chris Maher and William Johnson, company C, First Illinois.

The War Inquiry Commission.

Washington, Sept. 19.—The latest of of those asked to serve on the war inquiry commission to accept is Evan P. Howell, of Atlanta, who accepted Saturday. The gentlemen who have accepted or who, it is confidently expected, will consent to serve are: Colonel Sexton, General Dodge, Ex-Minister Denby, Howell, Gilman and Dr. Keene. The president wants nine, but will go ahead with seven, if necessary. General Schofield has definitely declined to serve.

Thirty-Second Michigan at Home.

Island Lake, Mich., Sept. 19.—After four months' service in camps at Tampa and Fernandina, Fla., and Huntsville, Ala., the Thirty-second Michigan infantry reached the state camp ground late last night. The regiment mustered 1,328 men, when it left here and brought back 1,039. Of the remainder a few are dead, many are on furloughs, a few were left in hospitals, and others are on special service. None of the men is seriously sick.

Wisconsin Troops Reach Home.

Milwaukee, Sept. 19.—Three companies of the Second Wisconsin regiment, comprising troops from Oshkosh, Appleton and Manitowoc, on their way home from Porto Rico, arrived here Saturday night. They were met at the station by a reception committee, bands of music and about 2,000 enthusiastic people. After partaking of a generous lunch at the Plankinton hotel they returned to the station and left for their homes.

Preacher To Be Court-Martialed.

Washington, Sept. 19.—Dr. Carstensen, the chaplain of the One Hundred and Fifty-eighth Indiana volunteers, who so severely criticised the war department, will in all probability be court-martialed. The department is weary of these acts of insubordination and criticism, and has begun to call the officers who indulge in them to account.

First Illinois Engineers.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—Captain Taylor E. Brown and the soldiers of the First Illinois provisional engineer corps reached home Saturday night. The train was two hours late, but hundreds of people lined the streets through which the company marched until after midnight and gave it an enthusiastic welcome.

Discharges for Volunteer Officers.

Washington, Sept. 19.—The war department has decided to change its policy in the matter of granting applications of volunteer officers for discharge and hereafter no such application will be considered unless indorsed by a superior officer and forwarded through him.

Find for Wanting to Go Home.

Camp Meade, Pa., Sept. 19.—For circulating a paper asking for the muster-out of his regiment, Private Charles I. Kerr, company I, One Hundred and Fifty-ninth Indiana, was ordered by the general court martial to pay a fine of $5 and serve five days in the guard house.

Alger Starts on His Tour.

Detroit, Sept. 19.—After a week's vacation at his home Secretary Alger left last night on his inspection tour of southern camps and hospitals. Governor Pingree, Brigadier General Duffield and Colonel Gardner, of the Thirty-first Michigan, saw the secretary aboard the car.

Pay for the Sixth Illinois.

Springfield, Ills., Sept. 19.—Colonel D. J. Foster, of the Sixth regiment, received the blanks for the pay rolls Saturday. Major B. B. Ray, paymaster, states that he will detail an officer to pay the regiment today.

BALTIMORE AND OHIO DEAL.

Armour, Hill and Ream Secure a Controlling Interest in the Road.

Milwaukee, Sept. 19.—During his stay in Milwaukee to attend the annual meeting of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul company, Philip D. Armour practically confirmed the reports that he, in company with J. J. Hill, Marshall Field and Norman B. Ream, had secured a controlling interest in the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. When seen at the Pfister hotel by an Associated Press reporter Armour said: "I dislike to say anything on this matter now; it is very delicate, as you must understand. There is, however, some foundation for the report sent out from Chicago yesterday."

Co-operative Plasterers Adjourn.

Indianapolis, Sept. 19.—The International Association of Co-operative Plasterers closed its annual session Saturday and elected the following officers: President, W. J. Wilson, Philadelphia; secretary-treasurer, Thomas A. Scully, Indianapolis.

PANA IS VERY UNQUIET

Needs a Cool Head in Charge of the Peace and Order of the Town.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM A BAD RIOT.

Sheriff Bowen Prevents a Row with Little Difficulty, It Would Seem—Negro Miner Assaults an Alderman and Unknown Persons Fire on the Negroes Previously—Quite a Number of Citizens Indicted—Indiana Judge's Strike Case Decision.

Pana, Ills., Sept. 19.—Not since the strike of the miners of the four big mines of Pana, inaugurated on April 1, during which time there have been many serious and exciting incidents, has there been such intense excitement and really trouble bordering on a riot and bloodshed, as was in existence Saturday night. Saturday evening at 6 o'clock one of the negroes working at the Penwell mines assaulted ex-Alderman Edward Molza, a business man and sympathizer with the miners. Molza resisted, but being no match physically for the negro, and unarmed, was soon overpowered and badly used up. The negro was quickly reinforced by several blacks from the Penwell stockades, near the street where the assault was committed. Molza stood his ground, however, and upon citizens approaching the negroes took flight. Some forty or more of the blacks from Springside, emboldened by the victorious and open assault upon Molza, paraded the business streets from 7 until 9 o'clock at night.

Looked Like Bloody Riot for Awhile.

They entered the store of Mine Operator George V. Penwell. Large bodies of miners and business men, with revolvers in sight, quickly filled Locust street fronting Penwell's place, and for a time it looked as though a riot with loss of life would surely follow. Sheriff Ira Coburn—cool, determined and with keen foresight—lined up a large force of special deputies in front of Penwell's department store, and quickly dispatched a force of twenty-five deputies through an alley to the rear of the store. Entering the building they awaited the trouble which was imminent. Chief of Police Kiely and his regular force of men were stationed near Penwell block, ready to aid the deputies. Trouble was avoided by Penwell ordering the negroes to leave the store, and Sheriff Coburn calmly advising them to go to their camp at Springside, they taking his advice.

Somebody Fires on the Negroes.

A company of negroes was fired upon by some parties Friday night, but whether any shots took effect has not been given out from Springside camp. Among the miners indicted for the riot of Sept. 1, when the operators Overholt were captured, who have been arrested are: Thomas Finnefrock, Joseph Mullen, Mossy West, John Boyle, Charles Boyle, Ed Franke, Homer Newcomb, Jeff French, Ed Kane, Samuel Haines, Albert Pranke and August Henriott. As quickly as the men were arrested they were taken to the city hall audience room, where they were retained prepatory to their removal to Taylorville and incarceration in the county jail. The city authorities refused to permit the sheriff the use of the city jail.

Wouldn't Eat a Non-Union Dinner.

All of the men indicted for intimidation and riot, and the business men indicted for refusing to act as deputies, have signified their intention of employing counsel and fighting the charges to a finish. Sheriff Coburn ordered dinner for the miners arrested at the new Grand restaurant. He marched them down to the restaurant, where dinners were in waiting for them, but they refused to eat at what they called a "scab restaurant." Coburn then marched them back to their prison quarters without food. Later State Secretary Ryan, of the Miners' union, sent dinner to them. All the men arrested furnished bond in the sum of $200 each to the sheriff and were released, a few hours after arrest.

DECISION IN A STRIKE CASE.

Chicago Strike Leaders Told That They Have No Business in Indiana.

Crown Point, Ind., Sept. 19.—Judge Diggs, of the Lake county circuit court, Saturday rendered a decision in the case of the state of Indiana against Sheriff Hayes. The decision was as follows: "There was a disposition indicated by the evidence that the sheriff had been selected as a mark. The court realizes fully the state of things that existed in Hammond, but cannot tolerate any interference with a man's business. Mr. Garrett, or any other man, has a perfect right to refuse to work for Mr. Conkey when they cannot agree on their wages; that right exists in any country. When they cannot agree on wages, so far as the court is concerned, Mr. Garrett or any other man has no right to interfere with any other man's business. The courts cannot tolerate it. The courts will enforce the rights of any laboring man just precisely the same as it will the rights of Mr. Conkey. The law makes no difference between them.

"Any man has a right to ask for employment and work for Mr. Conkey if he is satisfied with the wages offered. If he is not satisfied he has no business to interfere with Mr. Conkey. The courts cannot and will not entertain any interference. Mr. Garrett admits that he came from Chicago, in another state, and admits that he undertook to interfere with the running of that plant in Hammond. He had no business to do that at all. This court has now concluded that in this county it will not tolerate it for a moment, but will protect all alike. The court says that one man has no business to interfere with another man's business.

"The evidence discloses a condition which means that business was demoralized in the community. The courts are compelled to take hold of it. They cannot shirk the responsibility. They must meet it and dispose of it. Mr. Garrett and his committee had no business in Hammond. They had a right to refuse to work for Mr. Conkey, but they had no right to interfere with the plant or Mr. Conkey's business. The evidence is that there was an arrest made, because the sheriff says he arrested Senator Gostlin, and the senator himself says he was arrested. It is the opinion of the court that the finding will be in favor of the sheriff."

The case involved was against Sheriff Hayes, who it seems refused to arrest State Senator Gostlin, who struck one of the strikers during the recent labor troubles in Hammond, Ind., when called upon by the strikers to do so. Later, however, the sheriff, it appears, made the arrest, but action was taken against him with the result of the above decision.

MISS WINNIE DAVIS DEAD.

"Daughter of the Confederacy" Passes Away at Narragansett Pier.

Narragansett Pier, R. I., Sept. 19.—Miss Winnie Davis died at the Rockingham hotel at 12 noon yesterday.

"Winnie" Davis was the daughter of the late Jefferson Davis, and last week she had improved so much that her recovery was expected. Her mother survives her and is now alone in the world, Winnie being her only child.

MISS WINNIE DAVIS.

Miss Winnie Davis, the "Daughter of the Confederacy," was born in hte Confederate executive mansion at Richmond, Va., in 1863. She was educated principally at home. Miss Davis was her father's constant companion when he was alive. She assisted him in all his work and much of the information which was required by him in his writings was secured for him by his daughter. She was engaged to Mr. Wilkerson, of Syracuse, N. Y., but shortly after her father's death the engagement was broken off. While no public explanation of the rupture was given it is well known that it was for the purpose of maintaining her father's name. She received the name "Daughter of the Confederacy" in 1886, when her father made his famous trip through the south.

IN THE OLD, OLD MANNER.

The Battleship Illinois Will Have Champaign Spilt on Her Nose.

Springfield, Ills., Sept. 19.—Governor Tanner has decided the battleship Illinois shall be christened with champaigne, and has sent the following letter to Mrs. Matilda B. Carse, Jessie Brown Hilton and Helen L. Wood, the committee of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union which protested against chirstening the battleship with wine:

"Ladies: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 16th inst., replying to which I will say that it is with pleasure I pay my highest respects to the noble women of your union, and acknowledge with profound appreciation the excellent good you are laboring to establish. I would consider it a privilege to be able to assist you. Thousands of homes are better for your guardianship; thousands of hearts are grateful to you for your aid, and the world is better for having known the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

"In the matter, however, of following the time-honored custom of christening battleships there is no desecration of the laws of temperance. The ceremony is not one from which any evil could possibly be set forth, and the most sacred religious ordnance, the 'Sacrament' the world commemorates with the deepest solemnity and honor, is one in which wine is used as a symbol. Therefore I dismiss the subject as one unworthy of so much agitation. If left to me to settle, the battleship 'Illinois' will be christened according to the time-honored custom."

If Both Legs Had Been Wood.

Rockford, Ills., Sept. 19.—By the crashing through a weak bridge of a threshing machine engine, six miles west of this city, Hess Long was killed and Joseph Light was so severely injured that he will die. Both men, residents of Egan City, were pinioned for forty-five minutes and terribly scalded with steam. Light had a wooden leg which caught in the firebox and burned off. His other leg was caught in the machine, and he begged those about him to chop it off.

Money Orders Made More Convenient.

Washington, Sept. 19.—Postmasters have been authorized to issue money orders payable at their own offices. The new departure will be an accommodation to the great number of people who not having an account at a bank desire to follow this convenient method in the payment of bills, etc. These money orders may now be used in payment of gas bills, merchants' and grocers' bills, etc.

Electrical Consolidation.

New York, Sept. 19.—The official announcement was made Saturday that the Westinghouse Electrical Manufacturing company, of Pittsburg, had secured a working consolidation with the Walker Company, of Cleveland. This leaves the field of electrical manufacture to the Westinghouse and General Electric companies, which have had a working agreement for some time.

Parson's Failure Is a Bad One.

Sturgis, Mich., Sept. 19.—The inventory of the defunct private banking house of Daniel F. Parson in Burr Oak has been completed by Assignee Himebaugh and the experts. The liabilities were found to be $88,000 and the assets $12,000. The books show over $80,000 due depositors, who will receive practically nothing.

B. and L. President Arrested.

Milwaukee, Sept. 19.—John Harvey Myers, president of the Home Building and Loan association, was placed under arrest Saturday, charged with embezzling $10,000 of the association's funds.

Yellow Fever at New Orleans.

Washington, Sept. 19.—Surgeon General Wyman, of the marine hospital service, has been officially informed of a case of yellow fever in New Orleans.

WHOSE FAULT IS IT.

A Local Occurrence That Will Interest Many Readers.

If, when a fog horn warns the mariner to sheer off the coast, he still hugs the shore and wrecks upon it, whose fault is it? If the red switch light is up and the engine driver deliberately pulls ahead and pitches into another train, blame the driver. If a careless workman will, in spite of warnings, try to find out how many teeth a buzz-saw has, and the saw tries to find out how many fingers the workman has, blame the workman not the saw. If a sick man knows that a certain medicine is doing him good, and he carelessly neglects to use it, blame the man not the medicine. If Dixon people who have kidney complaint and backacke, will not take Doan's Kidney Pills when they are endorsed by scores of our citizens, blame the people, not the endorsers. Here is an example of home proof.

Mrs. C. Gonnerman, of 123 Ninth street says: "Last summer, 1897, having heard favorable statements as to the value of Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a box at Horton's drug store for my father, an old gentleman subject to many of the infirmities of advanced age. One of these infirmities was kidney trouble accompanied by dropsical tendency. When he began taking Doan's Kidney Pills his feet were much puffed and prevented the lacing of his shoes, but by the time he left our house the swelling was so reduced that his shoes could be laced snugly. He is now on a visit at another daughter's. I hear that the puffiness is reappearing, showing that for a man of his years the use of any medicine should be continued for quite a time. I have sent him another box of Doan's Kidney Pills, confident of the good results its use will give."

ILLINOIS CENTRAL R. R.
OF INTEREST
To Stockholders.

Free Transportation to attend the Annual Meeting at Chicago. Some Interesting Facts.

In order that stockholders of the Illinois Central Railroad Company may more readily attend in person the annual meetings, there has been posted in each station of the Company a notice to the effect that, in accordance with a resolve of the Board of Directors there may be issued to each holder of one or more shares of the capital stock of the Illinois Central Railroad Company, as registered on the books of the Company, a ticket enabling him or her to travel free over the Company's lines from the station of the Illinois Centrnl Railroad nearest to his or her registered address, to Chicago and return, for the purpose of attending, in person the next Annual Stockholders' Meeting of the Company, which will be held at its General Office in Chicago on Wednesday, September 28, 1898, at noon. Details as to the necessary procedure to obtain such ticket, the date of its issue and its limit, are fully set forth on the posted notices referred to. In this connection, it will be interesting to note that since, in 1862, the capital stock of the Company became full paid, a cssh dividend, ranging from 4 per cent. to 10 per cent. per annum, has been paid semi-annually to every holder of stock, and that it is now twenty years since the Company, in any year paid less than 5 per cent., the present rate of distribution.

SITUATION CLEARING.

Conditions Are Not Quite So Warlike in the Orient as They Were.

PEACE NOW LIKELY AT FASHODA.

France Said to Have Disavowed the Marchand Expedition—Sultan Accedes to the Demands of the British as to Crete—Dreyfus Case Continues to Worry the French, But Revision Seems Certain—Esterhazy Said To Be in Hiding.

London, Sept. 19.—From Cairo, and from an entirely independent source, The Daily Mail learns that France has assumed a conciliatory attitude towards Great Britain, and has declared that the expedition of Major Marchand is quite unofficial. The sirdar will offer to take Major Marchand to Cairo, and it is probable that the major will accept and that Fashoda will be occupied by Egyptian troops.

Candia, Island of Crete, Sept. 19.—The sultan has ordered Djevad Pasha, the military commander in Crete, to accede to the demand of the British admiral, Gerard Henry Noel, for disarmament, thus complying with the whole ultimatum of the admiral. A British military detachment yesterday occupied the entrance to the fort, and it is rumored that the Ottoman troops will be withdrawn and a British force will occupy the town.

Revision of the Dreyfus Trial.

Paris, Sept. 19.—General Zurlinden sent his written resignation to Premier Brisson Saturday as follows: "I have the honor to beg you to receive my resignation as minister for war. An exhaustive study of the papers in the Dreyfus case has convinced me too fully of his guilt for me to accept, as the head of the army, any other solution than that of the maintenance of the judgment in its entirety." General Chanoine, commander of the First division of the First army corps, has been appointed minister for war in succession to General Zurlinden, and Senator Godin, representing French India, was appointed minister of public works, succeeding M. Tillay. It is reported that a vessel has already started for the Isle du Diable in readiness to bring Dreyfus to Paris, and that M. Brisson and General Chanoine are determined that nobody, however high his position, will be sheltered. Stirring events are regarded as impending.

Count Esterhazy in Hiding.

London, Sept. 19. — The Observer states that Count Ferdinand Walsin Esterhazy has been in London for ten days past. The fact, the paper says, is known to a very few here, and it is not suspected in Paris. The court is quoted as saying that there is no justice in France, and, illustrating his belief in obeying orders: "If I were ordered to take a gun and shoot my own brother I would do so without hesitation." He added that out of the thousand documents in the Dreyfus dossier approximately 600 were forged.

ANOTHER POMPEII APPREHENDED.

Vesuvius Threatens a Great Disaster—The West India Storm.

Naples, Sept. 19.—A state of gloomy apprehension prevails among the population regarding the eruption of Vesuvius, which is hourly becoming more active and menacing. Streams of lava are spreading in every direction. The most threatening of these flows through the Vedrino valley, which is almost filled. The observatory, which originally stood at a height of 610 metres, is now only twenty-seven metres above the sea level, owing to the sinking of the ground. Seven new craters have formed around the central one, and this has not tended to diminish the fears formerly felt, which were based upon the eruption of stones and scoriae similar to that which occurred in 1872.

Kingston, Jamaica, Sept. 19.—Details of the hurricane are constantly coming in, which show the disaster to have been infinitely worse than was at first reported. The destruction in Barbadoes was fully equal to that in St. Vincent, while St. Lucia also suffered considerably. The island of Barbadoes was completely swept by the vortex of the cyclone, the result being that the entire area of cultivation was obliterated, while a majority of the residences and other buildngs were destroyed and two-thirds of the dense population of 160 to the square mile were rendered homeless. The consequent distress is unparalleled in the history of the West Indies. The actual extent of the fatalities has not been ascertained.

Will Cling to the Philippines.

London, Sept. 19.—The Daily Mail's Madrid correspondent says a long conference was held between Senor Sagasta, the premier, and Senor Montero Rios, the president of the Spanish peace commission, yesterday, which resulted in the decision that the peace commission shall strenuously defend the retention of the Philippine islands by Spain.

Britain and Delagoa Bay.

Berlin, Sept. 19.—The Vossische Zeitung declares that under the Anglo-German treaty Delagoa bay was ceded to Great Britain commercially and not politically.

Would Crush the Anarchists.

Rome, Sept. 19.—The government has proposed to the powers that international action be taken against anarchists.

Sad Drowning at West Superior.

West Superior, Wis., Sept. 19.—Friday evening Mrs. Emma Foley, of Bismarck, N. D., wife of the city editor of The Bismarck Tribune, was drowned by falling from the pier at the east end. She had just arrived here in the city to visit friends, and with them was looking at the flour mills on the water front, when a Northern Pacific engine came along and in stepping back out of the way she fell into the water.

Senator Kyle Rapidly Recovering.

Cleveland, Sept. 19.—Senator James H. Kyle, of South Dakota, who was stricken with apoplexy here a few days ago, is recovering so rapidly that Dr. Merrick, his physician, believes he will be able to start for his home in Aberdeen, S. D., this week.

SUPPOSED DEAD IS ALIVE.

Remarkable Illustration of the Uncertainty of Identification Sometimes.

Middleboro, Mass., Sept. 19.—The supposed victim of the Bridgeport, Conn., murder, Miss Marian Grace Perkins, arrived at her home Saturday afternoon in the best of health, to the great joy of the family and unbounded astonishment of the entire community. Her father was not in town, for at the time of his daughter's arrival he was on his way back from Bridgeport with the grewsome remains which he had identified as those of Grace, and for which the funeral arrangements, including the digging of the grave, had already been completed. Miss Perkins came from Providence, R. I., and was accompanied by her lover Charles Bourne, and at first it was stated that the couple had been married. This was afterwards denied by young Bourne's uncle.

At the Perkins home an uncle of the young woman, in the absence of her father, gave out the following statement: "We think that Grace and Charles Bourne have been married, as they have been off on frequent trips during the past two or three months. Grace knew nothing of the sensation until Friday morning, when she read it in the papers."

Says He Didn't Try to Suicide.

St. Louis, Sept. 19.—Celeste Villeneuve, the wealthy broker, of Austin, Tex., who was sent from the Lindell hotel to the city hospital Friday suffering from an overdose of morphine, will recover. He denies that he tried to commit suicide. The morphine taken, Villeneuve said, was to relieve a severe pain in his stomach.

For Illinois—Partly cloudy weather; variable winds. For Lower Michigan—Partly cloudy weather; light to fresh westerly winds. For Upper Michigan—Threatening weather; fresh to brisk westerly winds. For Wisconsin—Generally fair weather; light northwesterly winds. For Iowa—Fair weather; variable winds.

The Dog and the Law.

Once it is established that the nature of the species is gentle and that every dog is a law abiding and peaceable Bruno then it becomes necessary, before liability for the vulgar transgressions of a fierce Towser can be fastened on the owner, that he should have previous knowledge of the usual and not to be expected feature.

This is called scienter, and until an owner has this knowledge of his dog's viciousness he is not responsible, though in the error of its ways not acting as becomes a gentleman of the dog species or a lady, as the case may be. To be more accurate and exact, once a dog has departed from the narrow path of rectitude and demeaned itself in ways other than should obtain with a strictly proper and gentle animal, and the owner knows it, then it loses status and caste and must be put down as a vicious animal, and the owner keeps it at his peril. Lord Coleridge, it seems, was anxious to reduce the law on the subject to a nicety in the way of succinctness and brevity, and he succeeded by saying that "every dog is entitled to one bite," and the case has special reference to spring lamb or veal. The expression is varied by making it "every dog is entitled to one worry."—Green Bag.

Racial Repartee.

A Swede and an Irishman, both of them tolerably well known about town, got into an argument in front of the courthouse, and they began telling each other how it was too bad that their ancestors had ever happened to shed the wolf robes and take to living under cover. When things got a bit warm, the Swede remarked that there was no doubt in his mind that the Irishman would be entitled, by reason of his ancestry, to join some of the pedigree associations but for the unfortunate fact that most of those ancestors were hanged for stealing sheep.

"I suppose they did their sheep stealing with the understanding among themselves that they were all kings, and that it was all right to go over into the next county and steal whatever they could lay their hands on," said the Swede in conclusion.

"Yes, an be all accounts," said the Irishman, "your ancestors lived in kingdoms so very small that every time they smelled a stockfish in the yard of a neighbor they jumped over the fence an got it, an if they got back they made a national affair of it if there was any pursuit."—St. Paul Globe.

Grotesque Spanish Honor.

The Washington Times recalls a story about the Duke of Wellington that illustrates the fantastic idea of honor held by many Spaniards, contrasted with the practical common sense of Englishmen. When the duke was co-operating with the Spanish army in the peninsula against Napoleon, he was desirous on one occasion during a general engagement that the general commanding the Spanish contingent should execute a certain movement on the field. He communicated the wish to the Spaniard personally and was somewhat taken aback to be told that the honor of the king of Spain and his army would compel him to refuse the request unless Wellington, as a foreign officer graciously permitted to exist and fight on Spanish soil, should present the petition on his knees.

The old duke often used to tell the story afterward, and he would say, "Now, I was extremely anxious to have the movement executed, and I didn't care a 'twopenny damn' about getting on my knees, so down I pumped!"

Luminosity In Plants.

Many instances have been recorded of flowers being luminous at night. They only seem to do this on rare occasions, hence they are to be envied who have the good fortune to witness the phenomena. Though the writer has often endeavored to get fortune's favor, she has never smiled on him but once, when he saw the phosphorescent glow from fungi in a hollow tree, just like the glow of a match when rubbed in the dark. A German naturalist, Herr Haggren, seems to have met with a number of instances in his country—or, rather, the night watchman he employed did. He concludes the phenomena are more likely to occur when it is dark, after rain, following a sunny day. July and August gave the most instances. Occurrences began soon after sunset, and there were none after dawn. He could not decide on the cause of the luminosity.—Meehan's Monthly.

"Doubtful Characters."

When Mr. Gladstone and Lord Tennyson paid a visit to Kirkwall and wished to see St. Magnus' cathedral, they had to get the assistance of the United Presbyterian minister to show it to them.

"I was," Mr. Gladstone said, "such a doubtful character that even in the company of Tennyson I was not sufficiently respectable to be conducted over it by the proper authority." The story is told by Mr. Patrick Campbell, for so many years Mr. Gladstone's election agent in Midlothian.—Westminster Gazette.

Queer Reckoning.

Indian street peddlers throughout Mexico sell bananas for 12 cents a dozen, but when offered 24 cents on payment for two dozen bananas the peddlers refused it and demanded 25 cents. The course of reasoning is that 1 real is 12 cents; 2 reals, 25 cents; 8 reals make a dollar. So the traveler must pay a real for one dozen bananas, but 25 cents for two dozen, and no amount of argument will convince the peddler that this is not right.

Why She Could Smile.

"Your wife always wears such a happy expression, Mr. Willikins. She always seems to be smiling."

"Yes, she didn't have to earn the $47 worth of gold that she wears in her front teeth."—Cleveland Leader.

PIANOS AND ORGANS

at what others pay for them,,,

Is what we are selling high-grade pianos for.

I have been in business in Dixon for 25 years, and have sold 75 per cent. of the pianos and organs in Lee county, so the people know what kind of instruments I have always sold.

Since the beginning of cheap sales here I have purchased some cheap pianos to compete with them.

I Do Not Claim

to sell a $325 piano for $ 50, but I will sell you as good a piano for $125 as others ask $150 for.

If You Want

strictly first-class goods I have them, and can sell you good pianos from $175, $260 and $450. Call and examine the quality of my goods and see if they are not far superior and the prices lower

I have alway purchased direct from the factory for cash. So in this case I am prepared to do as I have always done in the past, BEST PIANOS for the LEAST MONEY.

THE SIXTH REGIMENT.

Having a Good Time at Camp Lincoln —Greetings by Friends—Real Picnic.

SPRINGFIELD Sept. 19th.

The boys of the Sixth Illinois Infantry are in good spirits today on account of the pleasant greetings by friends from home, and the attention paid them in the line of things good to eat such as they have not tasted before, since they left home.

Company G has been a little more fortunate than the others as their Dixon friends responded to their wants a little quicker than did the friends of the soldiers in the other companies of the Sixth. The boys fully appreciated the thoughtful kindness.

However, there were "others," and yesterday special trains came in with neighbors and friends of the other companies; and it may be said truely if war is not a picnic the soldiers have been enjoying a most delightful series of picnics since their arrival in this city.

Today the army paymaster is here with money until he "can't rest" and he is passing it over to the soldiers of the Sixth. There is due two months pay and therefore it will take about $58,000 to pay the regiment. The privates will receive $31.20 each, corporals $36, and sergents $43.20, the amounts for two months' pay. Major Bigelow the assistant paymaster will make an effort to pay the men in gold.

This promptness in paying them off gives the boys much cheer, not particularly that they need the money in "their business" but owing to the particular fact that it gives them assurance of a start for their homes at an early day. Indeed Colonel Foster hopes to have the men furloughed as early as tomorrow and it is likely it can be done. They probably will not get away before Tuesday or Wednesday night.

The thirty-six patients in the military hospital are all doing well and most of them will be able to return home with their companies. Many floral offerings were received during the day from thoughtful friends at home. There are no members of company G. in the hospital.

Members of company E., Sterling, were given a banquet last evening by citizens of Sterling at the Leland. A delegation from Sterling arrived yesterday morning and spent the day in camp. The company marched to the hotel at 7:30 o'clock.

The Captains and other officers' knowing the anxiety of the men to return home, are anxious that the men be furloughed as soon as possible. The officers will have to remain and make an accounting of the property on hand and arrange for a detail to guard it during the sixty day furlough.

There was a rumor in camp that the Sixth would not be mustered out at the expiration of the furlough and they would probably see service in Manila; but Colonel Foster said he had heard nothing of it. Some of the officers added they were willing to give some of the other regiments a chance to leave the country.

—C. A. Lucas went to Lee Center last Friday evening to attend the I. O. G. T. Lodge of that place. He reports them as being one of the best lodges in the country.

Major Baldwin's Illness.

Had it not been for the personal solicitude and interest Ora Hall had for his employer, Major Baldwin, the Major's body would now be in Porto Rico or buried in the ocean. The major had been ill for several weeks, but made no complaint. His stomach rebelled against the camp food and nothing that the natives could prepare tempted his appetite. Ora had watched him closely and knew that he was a very sick man with little vitality to withstand the fever that was now upon him. Knowing the date of the departure for the United States of the hospital ship, Relief, Ora went to the Major's tent the night before and found him sitting up. It was then nearly ten o'clock and after doing all there was to do about the tent he broached the subject of going home on the boat the next morning. Major Baldwin had wished to see the regiment through, and yet was very homesick to see his wife, baby, mother and father, and up to this night would not hear to his leaving the regiment. At last he said to Ora "Go and see if the Colonel is up." Ora went and returning reported that he was, and then the Major consented to arrangements being made for him to go in the early morning on the ship.

It is a source of great gratification to Ora that the Major's body was brought home to Dixon for burial. Outside of the Major's family there was no one so sadly effected by the Major's death as Ora Hall. Early Friday morning while on the train he procured a Chicago paper and the first item his eyes fell upon was the account of the death.

Company G Boys.

To illustrate their weariness and ability to sleep under difficulty, the boys at Springfield tell that Harry Miller of Co. G went to sleep while seated on the front railing of a street car on a rough track in New York City. The passengers thought he would fall off and be killed, but his comrades told them to leave him alone, that he could sleep hanging from a limb of a tree by his toes.

They tell of the kind treatment they received in New York City from Thomas and John McBride, sons of our Mr. and Mrs. John McBride of 64 East Fifth street, and John Keenan, whom they met there.

The committee from Dixon left a little money for present necessity with the boys at the Springfield hospital.

Saturday noon Lon Boyer was taken ill very suddenly and was made comfortable in the hospital tent. He was out of pain within an hour and up again during the afternoon.

Captain L. T. McGirr of Co. C, Galesburg, pall bearer at Major W. E. Baldwin's funeral, visited while here with his sister, Mrs. Chas. F. Nesbit of North Dixon.

The boys tell of the reception given them at Erie, Pa., by Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Johnson, our former citizens. When Ed. Ramsey of the First Regiment passed through Erie, he heard a lady say, "Will you have a sandwich?" and looking up was pleased to recognize Mrs. Johnson, who was very kind to him.

Ora Hall took Major Baldwin's horse from the train Saturday night to Geo. F. Stainbrook's livery stable and there the animal is being well cared for. It left Dixon a handsome horse and now shows the hardship encountered as plainly as do the soldier boys. Ora explains that the heat of the ship's hold where the horses were kept was intense; often having a temperature of one hundred and twenty, and then to keep the horse alive he stood by its side with a pail of water and a sponge bathing its head. A native pony that the Major hoped to bring home for his baby boy was stolen from them before they left Porto Rico.

Dead Returned to Life.

During the war the newspapers announced the death of Harold Robinson, a private in Co. B. The boy is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Robinson of Geneseo, Mr. Robinson being a prominent farmer. At the announcement the parents became grief-stricken, and Robinson's father brooded over the matter until he became insane. He is now in an asylum. The mother of the boy became uncontrollable in her grief and her mind is also wavering.

Today Senator Fisher learned from telegrams that Harold Robinson was not dead, and would be in Springfield with the regiment. This cheering news Senator Fisher at once telegraphed to the mother in Geneseo.

—Among the relatives and personal friends of Major Baldwin's family from abroad in attendance at the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Mostoller of Eldena, Mrs. Bessie Pierce, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Simmers and Mr. and Mrs. Miles Barr of Chicago. There would have been other relatives but for the death of Walter Bean, a brother-in-law of Mrs. Baldwin, which occurred at Fox, Ills., last Friday night.

She Desired to Start a Hashery.

A good looking woman made her appearance on the street last week. Not strange, you will say, as "the woods"—that is the streets are full of them. No, but this handsome woman was a stranger. She desired to start a boarding house. She had learned that Dixon is a thriving city, as it truly is, and she desired to locate here.

She was a business woman all over and it was natural that she should interview our business men and office holders.

She started a subscription. There is of course, nothing strange about that. Everybody has at times had more or less to do with subscriptions. Subscription on the streets of Dixon are as common as Hennepin canal talk in Sterling. You can hardly turn a corner without running up against one. They are not ordinarily pleasant things to meet, but our civilization demands set-backs of the sort, or we would become too happy.

We digress perhaps, from our subject.

The good looking stranger started a subscription for the purpose of starting a boarding house. If she could have make the subscription work we have no doubt about her success as a hash-dealer.

Her native shrewdness and boarding house business tact deserved better success. She started her subscription among the candidates for office, knowing them to be liberal. Deputy McGowan was the first one touched, but he turned her over to Sheriff Gray. The sheriff promptly told her that he could give not a cent to the end in view. Besides, he ran a sort of boarding house himself. He said that he was unmarried and feared that his motives would be misconstrued. He sucked the end of his pencil and blushed so loud it could be heard all over the jail. He said really her appearance was "so sudden, he hoped," etc., etc.

He denies having subscribed anything.

The good looking woman called upon Ira W. Lewis, candidate for county clerk, and after hearing her tale of woe patiently said that he would think it over a week or so She was persistent. He gazed sadly and thoughtfully out of the window towards his home: but we do not learn that he subscribed for the hashery.

Judge Farrand was another of the favored candidates called upon. She had heard that the judge was big-hearted and good-natured, and she just touched him, or tried to, for the entire outfit. She called his attention to the thought that

"The heart that is soonest awake to the flower
Is always the first to be touched by the thorn;"

and the Judge coldly replied that he had been "touched" so often of late that he was compelled to haul in his horns.

"Now, Judge, won't you help me start a boarding house; at least give me enough to put in some furniture?"

"Well," said His Honor, "you ain't asking much, are you?"

Her chin dropped modestly down upon a brooch nearly as large as the regulation boarding house parlor ornament—"God Bless Our Home." It is the only case on record where the Judge appeared utterly heartless.

She would compromise on five dollars, three dollars, one dollar, but he was very stony but kind in his refusal. The Judge filled the fine looking woman as full as a retort with good advice and dismissed her.

The last we heard of the good looking promotionist she was looking for Postmaster Maloney.

We do not see how she could pick out our best looking men without some sort of a guide. Perhaps she has looked the town over before.

Della L. a Winner.

Della L., George Libby's mare, won the race at Monmouth, but was only given second money. Driver Pearse sent her under the wire first in the fourth, fifth and sixth heats. At Monroe, Wis., on Sept. 3 she was also unfortunate in having blind judges. After winning two heats, she in the fifth heat came in a neck ahead of the bunch, but the judges said that they could not decide in her favor because she was so close under the judges' stand they could not see. She was given second.

F. L. Murray Injured.

At noon today F. L. Murray, agent for the C. & N. W. railway, met with an unpleasant experience. His horse and carriage was in the yard of the Grand Detour Plow Company's office, and when he stepped into the carriage the horse ran out of the gate before he could gather the lines well in hand. The animal turned short on the switch track, throwing Mr. Murray out. He held onto the lines stopping the horse quickly, but received severe scratches and bruises about the face.

BOYS' SHOES!

Boys are great shoe annihilators. Customers often tell us that their boys are "hard on their shoes."

We have a special line of shoes for just this class of boys. They have double soles, good plump uppers, and are as near indistructible as anything made of leather can be--still they are not clumsy looking.

We think they are the best boys' shoes we ever saw and know that every one who buys a pair must feel satisfied, for there are no better shoes made.

What Shall I Do?

What shall I do lest life in silence pass?
And if it do
And never prompt the bray of noisy brass.
What needst thou rue?
Remember aye the ocean deeps are mute,
The shallows roar.
Worth is the ocean. Fame is but the brink
Along the shore.

What shall I do to be forever known?
Thy duty ever.
This did full many who yet slept unknown—
Oh, never, never!
Thinks thou perchance that they remain unknown
Whom thou knowst not?
By angel trumps in heaven their praise is blown.
Divine their lot.

What shall I do to gain eternal life?
Discharge aright
The simple duties with which each day is rife,
Yea, with my might.
Ere perfect scheme of action thou devise
Will life be fled,
While he who ever acts as conscience cries
Shall live though dead.

Cessna officiating. Mr. Coates is general advertising agent of the Dixon Star, is a young man of pleasing address, and has come here to make Dixon his home. His father was for a long time head of a large manufacturing establishment in Ohio, and Mr. Coates will perhaps later start a factory in this city.

STILL GOING UP.

Too Much Curiosity Will Cause His Death.

The following is on Lee county, Ill., and sad indeed is the impending end of this young man: The horrible news comes from the Hon. D. Myers' farm, south of Harmon, that a young man climbed a corn stalk last Monday to see how it was getting along and now the corn is growing up faster than he can climb down. Three men have undertaken to cut down the stalk but owing to its rapid growth it is feared they will not succeed in time to prevent the young man's death by starvation. He is subsisting on raw corn, and has already thrown four bushels of cobs down on the ground and it is now thought that his supply is almost exhausted. This farm is for sale by John E. Grove.

College Notes.

A large number of students have purchased tickets for the Y. M. C. A. course of entertainments and there will be a good attendance of students at the opera house tonight.

The cadets, about seventy-five strong, attended Major Baldwin's funeral in a body and made a good appearance, although it would be much better if all had uniforms.

There was no union meeting of the christian societies in chapel Sunday. This change was made to accommodate those students who wished to attend the funeral of Major Baldwin.

Work commenend this morning on the new dining-hall to be erected at once south of the present dining hall at the ladies' residence. Prof. Dille is going to have things right or know why.

The Czarina.

The czarina has received from the French nation a gift which merits something more than passing notice. It consists of a shawl of chantilly lace about three yards long by one in breadth, but wrought of polychrome threads like venetian embroidery instead of being in one color only. Round the edge runs a border of narcissi, exactly counterfeiting the delicate hues of nature. This incloses two sprays of red and yellow roses, which meander intertwined along the four sides of the rectangle, the central space of which is dotted all over with little lilies on a ground of the finest point d'alencon.

Lastly, in each corner the monogram of Alexandre Feodoroxna, surmounted by an imperial crown, is worked in gold. The idea of this charming gift and the design of the pattern emanated from the brain of Felix Aubert, the artist, who, while sketching in Normandy, watched the peasant women plying their delicate trade—now, alas, fast dying out since the introduction of machinery—for a gain of a little more than 3 pence a day. It struck him that the introduction of a novelty and the prestige attaching to an imperial gift might revive the beautiful but decaying industry. It is to be hoped that the result will justify his hope.

Honor For Miss Eva Leon.

Officier d'academie, one of the highest titular distinctions in its gift, is the title just bestowed by the French government on Miss Eva Leon of New York, says the New Orleans Picayune. She has been selected as the recipient of the distinction on account of her services in the cause of the French language. Miss Leon was born in Beirut, Syria, 28 years ago. Her parents were there temporarily. As a child she was taken to Paris and placed in a boarding school. Ten years ago she stood for the examination of the College of France and was graduated with high honors, receiving a diploma carrying with it the right to teach French as a perfect French scholar. Armed with the diploma, Miss Leon went back to Syria. There and in other eastern countries, while teaching French, she became a student of literature. She remained in the east for five years. Then, after spending two years in Europe, she came to this country, where she has been teaching since. Part of the time was spent in a large school in Philadelphia. The title is granted by the minister of public instruction. Miss Leon says she hopes to return to Syria to continue the teaching of French there.

Home Training For Girls.

"A home training for a girl is a thing not to be despised," writes Edward Bok in an article, "Shall Our Girls Go to College?" in The Ladies' Home Journal. "If that training is of the best, it is an exceedingly fine question to decide whether it is not as good in its highest and truest results as a college course. That a home training is infinitely better for a great many of our girls than the best training possible at a college admits, I think, of very little, if any, dispute. I say this, and emphasize the point, because some of our girls are prone to feel that they are, in a measure, abused and handicapped if they are not permitted by their parents to go to college. I question very much from our present conditions of society whether the time has yet been reached in American life when one can truthfully say that the majority of our girls can be safely sent away from the home anchorage at a time in their lives when they are most impressionable and when the influence of a careful mother's training means everything to them."

Twelve Bridesmaids.

Some new ideas in wedding novelties come from Berlin, where a daughter of one of the emperor's aids-de-camp was married to a man of high position. The bridesmaids were 12, and each was escorted, so that there were 24 immediate attendants upon the bride. She wore a myrtle wreath in place of the usual knot of orange blossoms. Her bouquet was roses and lilies, a gift from the emperor himself. The bridesmaids were in full evening dress, without hats or bonnets. The emperor kissed the bride's hand when the ceremony was over and was one of the guests at the supper. The menu included spring soup, plovers' eggs, Ostend soles, lamb, ham, truffles, chickens, lobster salad, asparagus, strawberry ice, cheese, sandwiches and dessert. The bride and bridegroom did not hasten away from the reception in the usual fashion, but waited until every guest had gone before taking their departure.

A Woman's Parliament.

The woman's parliament of southern California is a federation, not of clubs, but of clubwomen. Formed six years ago it represents the southern counties of California, including Los Angeles, Santa Barbara and San Diego, and it has nearly 1,000 women on its membership roll. It meets semiannually, and listens to papers and holds discussions upon all questions of especial interest to women. Its first president was Mrs. Kate Tupper Galpin of Los Angeles and its newly elected president is Mrs. Reynolds, who won the honor of being appointed a major for an act of bravery in the civil war.

Helen Gould's Goodness.

Helen Gould sends to Governors island enough ice cream to supply the hospital twice a week. She has also secured a carload of lemons for the wounded from Santiago. Her good deeds rarely come to the surface, for where one is heard of hundreds of others are not. But her kindness to the soldier boys is on every one's tongue, and she is universally alluded to as the "good fairy" of the hospitals. Miss Gould at Governors island is a more inspiring sight than the whole bevy of rich women at Newport.—New York Lettter.

Leech Lake

Is a new and coming popular Summer Resort in Minnesota. The Lake is the third largest in Minnesota, is supplied with new and good hotels, steam and rowboats and the bass and muscallonge fishing is unexcelled. Walker, on the West side of the Lake is surrounded by other beautiful lakes and the shores round about make splendid camping spots. The Northern Pacific in connection with the Brainerd & Northern Minnesota Railway reaches this new and glorious region, so worthy the patronage of Minnesotans.

Send six cents for Wonderland '98 and Leech Lake phamplet to CHAS. S FEE, General Passenger Agent, St Paul, Minnesota, and call or rates and particulars upon any Northern Pacific Agent.

Volume on Domestic Animals.

A volume of 500 pages, giving the treatment, cure and care of domestic animals, Horses, Cattle, Sheep, Dogs, Hogs and Poultry, sent free; Humphreys' Medicine Company, Corner William and John Sts., N. Y.

The Army and Navy

Have covered themselves with glory during the war. The Army and Navy Vest Pocket Memorandum Book published by the Northern Pacific is a compact digest of information relative to the Armies and Navies of Spain and the United States at the beginning of the war. It has a map of Cuba, illustrations of Naval ships, glossarry of Army and Navy terms, translation of Spanish words, etc. Send ten cents to CHAS. S. FEE, General Passenger Agent, Northern Pacific Railway, St Paul, Minnesota, for a copy.

If You Leave Home

For the summer go where you will find almost literally, a new world. Such a spot is Yellowstone Park. There is no place like it in the world. You would be astonished at what you see and learn there. A month's outing in those mountains 7,000 feet above the sea level, in an atmosphere pure and invigorating, would add years to your life. There are four modern hotels, good roads—maintained by the United States Government—for riding, driving or cycling; riding horses and pack trains. Geysers, canyons, mud springs, lakes, cataracts and cascades in large number, are crowded in a space 54 by 62 miles in size. If you can afford it, you wrong yourself by not going there especially if you are a patriotic American. If you cannot afford it, then go to beautiful Leech Lake in Minnesota, a new and popular resort. New hotels, fine fishing and hunting, and good boating at reasonable rates. Send CHAS. S. FEE of Northern Pacific Railway, St. Paul, Minnesota, six cents for Wonderland '98, that describes by pen and picture both resorts. Mention where advertisement was seen.

Another Reduction in Rates to Omaha.

Tourists tickets via the North-Western Line, the pioneer line west and northwest of Chicago, will be sold during September at very low rates. Apply to agents for full particulars.

SOMEWHERE.

Somewhere the wind is blowing,
I thought as I toiled along
In the burning heat of the noontide,
And the fancy made me strong—
Yes, somewhere the wind is blowing,
Though here where I gasp and sigh
Not a breath of air is stirring,
Not a cloud in the burning sky.

Somewhere the thing we long for
Exists on earth's wide bound,
Somewhere the sun is shining
When winter nips the ground,
Somewhere the flowers are springing,
Somewhere the corn is brown
And ready unto the harvest
To feed the hungry town.

Somewhere the twilight gathers,
And weary men lay by
The burden of the daytime
And, wrapped in slumber, lie;
Somewhere the day is breaking,
And gloom and darkness flee,
Though storms our bark are tossing,
There's somewhere a placid sea.

And thus, I thought, 'tis always,
In this mysterious life,
There's always gladness somewhere
In spite of its pain and strife,
And somewhere the sin and sorrow
Of earth are known no more,
Somewhere our weary spirits
Shall find a peaceful shore.

Somewhere the things that try us
Shall all have passed away
And doubt and fear no longer
Impede the perfect day.
Oh, brother, though the darkness
Around thy soul be cast,
The earth is rolling sunward,
And light shall come at last!
—Alfred Capel Shaw in Elmira Facts.

THE APPLE TREE.

One evening I noticed by Moussia's photograph, which always stood covered with a white crape veil on a small table, three red cheeked apples. These plebeian fruits seemed out of place in the aristocratic Parisian drawing room, crowded with rare knickknacks and works of art. Moussia's mother, observing my questioning glance, said, pointing to a picture at the end of the room, "These fruits were picked on the apple tree which you see in this picture, the last one painted by Moussia." Then the sorrowing woman told me the story of the apple tree so intimately connected with that of the young artist, Marie Bashkirtseff, who died when only 24 years old.

In the spring of 188— Moussia was planning to paint a peasant woman in the open country for the salon of the following year. She spent days looking in the outskirts of Paris for a suitable landscape in which to place her model. One morning she found near Sevres a field inclosed by fence palings, beyond which a walk overgrown with grass lost itself under willows, through whose young shoots the sun shone brightly. Half way up the walk, on a background of grayish green bushes, with an outline almost as soft as that of smoke, stood a robust apple tree, broadly spreading its flowery branches. The whole scene was filled with tender, fresh, stirring harmony, with spring itself. Moussia was moved. She felt that this was the looked for spot. Opening the gate, she walked toward the house, which was separated from the orchard by a garden filled with beehives. The proprietor happened to be one of those half bourgeois, half peasant horticulturists who provide the Parisian markets with flowers and fruits. The request made by the enthusiastic looking young girl with the expressive blue eyes flattered him. He loved his trees, and the admiration of a painter for them pleased him extremely. Moussia was readily given permission to work in the inclosure, and she began the very next day.

Early in the morning she arrived on the tramway, with her model, who carried their lunch in a basket. Moussia understood her art. She was no longer a beginner, for some of her pictures had already been much talked of at the salon. Though belonging to a rich family, which occupied a high position among the aristocracy of her country, she worked not as an amateur, but as an artist anxious to win fame. Her work showed the melancholy fire and poetry which belong to those born in Little Russia. The sketch of her painting absorbed her entirely. She was trying to put on the canvas some of the effervescent spring about her. She painted rapidly, as if afraid not to be able to finish the task she had undertaken. Every morning she came back, in spite of the April showers and the rawness of the air, which often made her cough. The owners of the place admired her pluck, and as they saw her painting, bareheaded, standing in the dew, with a blouse over her gray dress, they believed her to belong to their station in life and thought she was working for her daily bread.

The housewife brought her warm milk, the children played near her while she rested, and the horticulturist, learning that some young trees interfered with the perspective, had not hesitated to cut them down. It was touching to see this man, usually so careful of his possessions, willingly sacrifice them to gratify the wish of the young artist. By degrees a touching intimacy began between them. At noon Moussia was often invited to share the cabbage soup and bacon.

The picture was growing. The peasant seated at the foot of the apple tree looked most lifelike. Only a few finishing touches were needed. Gathered around the easel, the family agreed that the apple tree was beautiful, for it seemed as if by stretching out one's hand the pretty, fresh, pink and white blossoms could be plucked. One evening Moussia carried her picture away to show it to some friends, promising to return with it in order to finish certain details in the landscape. They waited for her in vain. One by one the blossoms on the tree were carried away by the breeze. At the end of a fortnight a package arrived containing a dress pattern of handsome black silk. A letter accompanied the present. Moussia told her friends that a severe cold kept her indoors, and she begged the housewife to accept the dress in remembrance of the kind hospitality she had received.

This was indeed a disappointment for these good people. What they had done for the artist had been done for friendship's sake. The gift of the silk, which must at least have cost 20 francs a yard, pained them. The present seemed entirely out of proportion with the service rendered. Their pride was hurt. They decided to return the silk. In a catalogue of the salon they found Moussia's address, and one day on their way to the Halles they stopped in the Avenue de Villiers, where the artist lived. When they arrived in front of the house, they thought they must have made a mistake in the number. Was it possible that their young friend lived in this beautiful mansion? Then she was not a poor artist.

They rang; a liveried servant opened the door. After taking their names he ushered them into a sumptuous drawing room. Moussia was lying on a couch wrapped in a loose white plush gown. She was much thinner, very pale. Her large eyes shone with a phosphorescent brilliancy. Recognizing her friends, she uttered a joyful exclamation, and raising herself with difficulty she gave them her emaciated hand.

"I am so happy to see you," she said, coughing almost at every word. "You must not feel hurt because I did not come to thank you. I am not allowed to go out. It seems that I worked too hard on my last picture. I took cold standing in the grass. I am now here for some time."

The horticulturist and his wife looked at her in bewilderment. An expression of deep pity came over their faces. The gardener no longer knew what to do with the package containing the silk. He felt that he could not return it.

"We don't mind it as you were sick," answered the wife, "but still we were sorry that you sent us this silk. What we did for you we did willingly. We did not want a present for letting you work on our place. My husband and I decided to bring the dress back."

"Oh, you were the one who wished to bring it back," interrupted the husband.

"You are both foolish about the matter," exclaimed Moussia, laughing as she used to. "You would pain me deeply by refusing my present. I wish you to wear this dress," she added, speaking to the gardener's wife, "in remembrance of me when I am no longer in this world."

Then they both assured her that as she was so young she would soon regain her strength and overcome the disease.

"No," answered Moussia, "I cannot get well. The candle is burning at both ends. I shall not live long. You know that children who are too clever never live long." She tried to laugh, but a mist covered her blue eyes.

"And the apple tree?" she asked, abruptly changing the subject. "Is it always beautiful?"

"Oh, no, indeed," they answered, "the blossoms are all gone; but the fruit is beginning to show. Apples will be plentiful. You must come out and eat some in September. The good air of Sevres will restore you to health, mademoiselle."

She shook her head and let it fall back on the cushions, tired and exhausted by having spoken so much.

When the horticulturist and his wife departed, Moussia closed her eyes and thought of the apple tree. It was in good health. The sap was running from its roots to its branches. It spread its foliage in the sun, laughing at rain and wind, at cold nights and hot noons, while she, imprisoned in a room, attended by the wisest Paris doctors, was slowly dying. Oh, misery of human life! She was young, beautiful, rich, beloved, unusually gifted. She had so much to tell the world, her head was so full of pictures.

Toward the end of October the gardener and his wife received a letter with a wide black border telling them of Moussia's death, and these good people wept for the lovely girl who during one month had been the life and brightness of their modest country dwelling.

In the mad whirl of large cities a human life ended makes little more impression than the falling of a dead leaf. After a few days of painful astonishment the gay Parisian world which had so admired and feted Moussia returned to its business and its pleasures. Alone three women in mourning continued to weep in the home of the Avenue de Villiers.

One April afternoon they were quietly sitting in the drawing room, filled with souvenirs of the departed, when the gardener and his wife came into the room. They were dressed for the occasion. The husband wore his Sunday coat, the wife had her shawl on, under which she concealed a large package.

"Excuse us, ladies," said the gardener, "I am afraid we are disturbing you, but we could not let this time of the year go by without letting you know that we often speak of the dear young lady. My wife and I thought we would like to bring you something in remembrance of her." The woman raising her shawl brought forth an armful of flowery branches. "These are," he continued, "the blossoms of the apple tree she painted. They will tell you better than we can how we felt toward Mlle. Moussia, and if you will allow it we will bring you every year some blossoms from the tree as long as it bears."

What kindness there is in simple hearts! It is truly worth more than all the eloquence of the poets and all the gold of the earth. The gardener and his wife have kept their word, and thus it is that Moussia's picture is almost always adorned with pink blossoms or ripe apples—faithful and simple offering from the old apple tree to the dead young girl.—From the French of Andre Theuriet For Short Stories.

Chinese Highways.

In China there is no regular standard of distance. Standards vary in the different provinces of the empire, the chih, or unit of length, varying from 9 to 16 inches in different provinces. A Chinese mile may be from a quarter of an English mile to a mile and three quarters, according to the province.

How to Look Good.

Good looks are really more than skin deep, depending entirely on a healthly condition of all the vital organs. If the liver be inactive, you have a bilious look; if your stomach be disordered, you have a dyspeptic look; if your kidneys be effected, you have a pinched look. Secure good health and you will surely have good looks. "Electric Bitters" is a good alterative and tonic. Acts directly on the stomach, liver, and kidneys. Purifies the blood, cures pimples, blotches and boils and gives a good complexion. Every bottle is guaranteed. Sold at A. H. Tillson's Drug Store. 50c per bottle. 5

MORROW'S KIDNEOIDS

Stand Pre-eminent as a Kidney and Bladder Cure.

There is no such thing as dodging the truth. It may work for a little time, but falsehood is alway caught in the end, and retired in disgrace. Morrow's Kidneoids stand at the head of all kidney cures, whether in or out of the market today.

There is a scientific preparation, prepared in a chemical laboratory, and made as they should be and to cure. They are no "mixup" medicine made by cheap help without experience in handling drugs—but by a well known chemist - John Morrow. Kidneoids have attained great prominence everywhere, and have done so much good that hundreds of people, East and West, North and South are recommending them to their friends and neighbors.

Mrs. Amos Strong of 223 Second street, Dixon, is one of the many. "I have been a sufferer with lame back and urinary disturbances for some time. I was also nervous. I tried to get something to help me, but could not. My back was so lame at times that I found it difficult to rise from my chair without assistance. I at last tried your Morrow's Kidneoids, which I secured at Horton's drug store. They relieved me at once, and I have had no trouble since. They cure, and cure quickly."

All druggists, 50 cents and are yellow tablets (not pills) Manufactured by John Morrow & Co., Chemists, Springfield, Ohio.

Fruit Not Good for Soldiers.

Writing from Camp Merrit, San Francisco, Mark H. Evans, clerk of Co F. 51st Iowa, says: "When I left Des Moines I had with me two bottles of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. The fruit out here has not exactly agreed with a majority of the boys and my two bottles have been in a great demand, so much so that it is all gone." Mr. Evans has since been supplied and will take a good lot of the remedy along to the Philippine Islands. There is no danger from bowel complaint when this remedy is used. It always cures. PORTO RICAN MONEY.

NATIVES SAY WE SHOULD REDEEM THEIR SILVER AT PAR.

Otherwise Chaos Is Feared—Business Men There Only Too Glad to Be Taxed to "Square" Uncle Sam on Loss by Redemption.

Manuel Badrena, United States consular agent at Mayaguez, Porto Rico, and a Porto Rican, takes rather a gloomy view of the immediate future of this rich island unless the money question is solved soon. He is preparing some interesting figures to send to Washington regarding the production of coffee, sugar, etc., and says unless it is entirely without his province he will make some suggestions as to the proper way to settle the vexed money question.

"At present," he said, "the business of the island is at a standstill. The only thing that can bring about a quick recovery is for the United States to redeem the issue of Porto Rican silver at par and replace it with American money. If this is not done, many merchants will be ruined, banks will be closed and the whole island receive a setback. Values just now are fearfully unsettled, and things are growing worse. The basis of value of course was the Porto Rican silver dollar. Since American money came in one American dollar is worth anywhere from $1.40 to $2 in our money. Now, what sort of a condition is this? And I say it is growing worse.

"Should the United States government repudiate the silver of Porto Rico, or even take it up at its value as bullion, the business of this suffering little island will be chaos. Outstanding accounts will be hopelessly mixed and the best business interests ruined beyond repair. The total amount of the special issue for Porto Rico is only $5,000,000. If the United States redeems this at par, I estimate that country will lose about $3,000,000. But she will save the business interests of this island, and besides will not lose in the long run, as a special tax can be imposed on certain products for the purpose of paying off that sum, which should stand as a debt of the island until it is paid. Business men and plantation owners would gladly pay that tax in order to save their credit and are preparing to make such an announcement to Washington."

Here several representative planters and exporters, representing the best interests of the island, were introduced and said the consular agent had represented the situation correctly. They were not only willing but anxious that such a special tax should be imposed to pay the loss in redeeming at par the $5,000,000 Porto Rican silver in circulation. With this money redeemed at par and United States money substituted values would be re-established and their credit and business saved. Senor Badrena gave me some figures to show how easily and quickly this rich little island could not only pay the regular rate of taxation, but any special tax that might be imposed.

The production of coffee last year was 500,000 hundredweight at an average value of $25 a hundredweight, Porto Rican money. All moneys mentioned here are based on the Porto Rican issue. This coffee ranks with the best in the world, and all goes to Europe, none to the United States. All this of course will be changed. The total cost of producing this coffee and hauling it to the seaport is $12, so there is a clear profit of $13 on every hundredweight. The coffee planters last year made $6,500,000.

Different grades of sugar are produced and manufactured here—muscovados, aguadilla and centrifugal. The muscovados is chiefly manufactured in Mayaguez, Aguadilla and the south of the island. The centrifugal is made in Mayageuz, Ponce and San Juan; also Navarillo. The production last year was 48,409,113 kilograms, or 1,075,000 hundredweight of various grades and values. Part of this goes to Spain and part to the United States. There were 1,528,434 kilograms, or about 350,000 hundredweight of tobacco produced here. It is dark and strong, and the best of it goes to Cuba, where it is manufactured and then sold to the United States as high grade Cuban tobacco. The rest goes to Germany. Only the poorest grades are used for home consumption. Of the 1,809,524 gallons of molasses produced about all goes to the States.

These figures do not represent by any means the productive capacity of Porto Rico, even with its poor facilities for transportation and the intensely crude and ignorant means of taking advantage of nature's generous productivity. Owing to the uncertainty of the war and the shifting values of money as a result, there was a heavy falling off in production, so the above figures show Porto Rico at its worst.—Harry N. Gaither in New York Press.

Tots' Tribute to Colonel Roosevelt.

At the entrance to Colonel Roosevelt's country grounds at Oyster Bay, N. Y., beside the drive, where every visitor might see it, there stood recently a stick about four feet high surmounted by a small and very dirty American flag. Nailed to the stick was a square piece of cardboard, on which was printed in straggling letters:

"In honor of Colonel Roosevelt."

"Who placed that there?" asked a visitor of the cabman who brought him to the house. "The children of Oyster Bay," said the cabman, with a grin. "You see, they wanted to do something to welcome the colonel back, and they got up this sign and about 20 of them marched out here with it. When they got to the entrance to the grounds, their courage failed them, and so they stuck the stick in here and retreated." The colonel was delighted when he saw it. —Washington Star.

THE CHARGE AT SAN JUAN.

An Indiana Soldier Says a Bugler Who Had No Order Sounded It.

W. G. Thurman of the Sixteenth regiment, who is now at his home in Evansville, Ind., recovering from a wound, says the charge at San Juan hill was the work of a bugler.

When the Sixth and Sixteenth infantry had gained a point 150 yards from the foot of the hill after a series of short rushes across the plain, they dropped to fire and load. They were flat on the ground awaiting the bugle call to make another rush. Suddenly the notes rang out. Instead of the short call, "Forward," which they expected, came the longer thrilling call of "Charge." With a yell that would have done credit to the bronzed warriors of the west the soldiers sprang to their feet and swept up the hill. With a rush they carried it and on the top stood shooting down the fleeing Spaniards.

The commanding officer of the brigade, General Hawkins, was astounded at the charge and the bugle call which ordered it. After the hill had been gained General Hawkins started an investigation to discover who was the bugler. He had no success until he said he did not wish to punish the man, but to compliment him and get him a promotion if possible. Then the man was pointed out by his willing companions. He was Bugler Shroder of the Sixth infantry. He received the commendation of his chief modestly. The fact that Bugler Shroder ordered the charge was not noised about, but the men in the brigade knew it, and it was common talk with them. He was a hero with them, for they considered his act the only thing to do. At each short rush more men were falling. As they neared the foot of the hill the Spanish fire was getting more deadly and demoralizing. The order to charge would doubtless have come from the commander after a few more short rushes and rest, but Bugler Shroder hastened matters.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

THE FARMER'S DREAM.

Suggested That Animals Be Trained to Do Most of His Work.

E. W. Tinsley of Boone county, Mo., has originated a scheme which, if faithfully executed by others, may convince a good many kind hearted people that they should grieve no more at the alleged unhappy lot of the American farmer. If the scheme works, the life of the farmer, from being a ceaseless round of hopeless toil, will be a long, sweet rest. Mr. Tinsley hopes to cause the change by means of trained animals, which he is convinced may be made to do nearly the entire work of the farm with but little human assistance.

The idea was suggested several days ago when in company with Judge John A. Stewart he was clearing a field of weeds by means of a mower drawn by a team of mules. After driving the team back and forth for several hours the two men repaired to a spring near by for a brief rest, leaving the mower in the field. While at the spring they heard a familiar clicking sound which told them plainly that the mower was in motion. On investigating they found that the mules had started with the mower and were cutting weeds on their own accord, proceeding back and forth in a systematic manner, just as they had been accustomed to do when guided by human hands. After Mr. Tinsley had watched them cut several acres of weeds the idea before mentioned struck him very forcibly. He has taken the mules in hand, and the amount of farm work they are doing without assistance is astonishing the natives. Mr. Tinsley intends to begin training horses, hogs and cattle and is convinced that he will soon have little to do but sit in the shade and meditate on the blissful indolence of a farmer's life.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THINGS TOLD BY CONSULS.

The latest computation shows that it is 2,413 miles from San Francisco to Honolulu and 8,050 miles from San Francisco to Manila, Philippine islands, by way of Honolulu.

The governor general of the Kongo Free State has clapped an annual tax of $28.95 on every commercial agent, traveling salesman, peddler and shopkeeper in that territory. Interpreters are taxed $1.93.

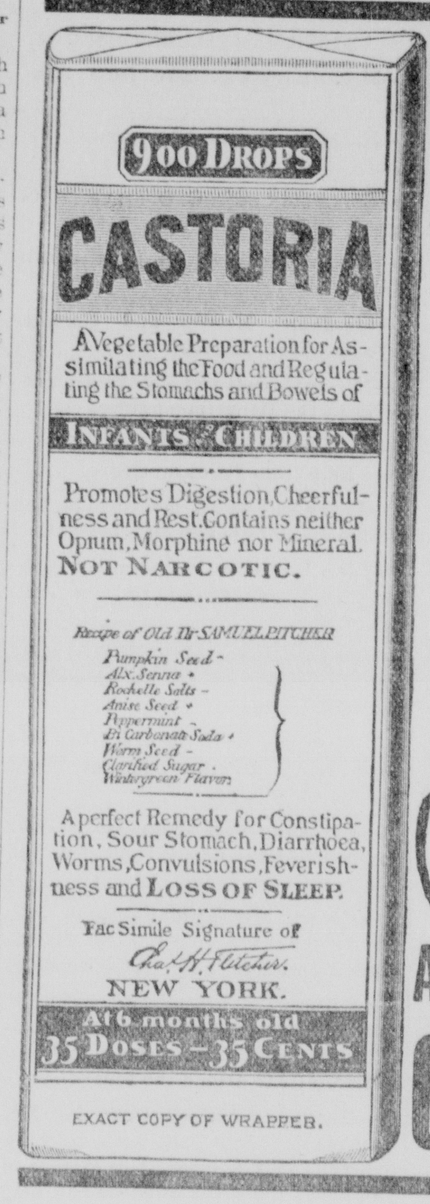

Twelve American built locomotives have been shipped to China for use on the northern railways of that kingdom, and there is a steadily growing demand for American railway supplies of all kinds.

Having invaded the markets of the world with most other articles, American manufacturers are now making arrangements to sell thousands of coffins to the Australians, in competition with the Birmingham makers.

In Austria flour made from Irish potatoes has come to supplant wheaten flour in many lines of bakery and confectionery work. It makes a beautifully white and light cake and is highly nutritious. It is cheaper than ordinary flour.

The tremendous pottery trade of Staffordshire, England, is in a very unsatisfactory condition, the exportations to America having dwindled in remarkable fashion, owing principally to the competition of American factories.

Canadian bicycles next year, by agreement among the manufacturers, will have 30 inch wheels instead of 28 inch, which are now the standard, will be from one to two pounds heavier than those of 1898 and will cost more.—H. S. Canfield in Chicago Times-Herald.

RELIABILITY

is a quality some newspapers have lost sight of in these days of "yellow" journalism. They care little for truth and a great deal for temporary sensation.

It is not so with THE CHICAGO RECORD.

The success of THE RECORD rests upon its reliability.

It prints the news—all the news—and tells the truth about it.

It is the only American newspaper outside New York city that has its own exclusive dispatch boat service and its own staff correspondents and artists at the front in both hemispheres.

It is the best illustrated daily newspaper in the world.

Its war news service is unapproachably the best.

Says the Urbana (Ill.) Daily Courier:

"We read the war news in the other papers, then we turn to THE CHICAGO RECORD to see how much of it is true."

Sold by newsdealers everywhere and subscriptions received by all postmasters. Address THE CHICAGO RECORD, 181 Madison street, Chicago.
